

Poet's Trail to King Farm Overlook

Description Through fields and woods follow the Poet's Trail to a bench at an overlook of the Ottauquechee River Valley below. At the farm you can see flocks of Guinea hens, an alpaca, pigs and goats. King Farm can also be accessed by the trails that connect it to the Marsh-Billings-Rockefeller National Historical Park.

Distance 2 miles round trip to overlook

Trailhead King Farm parking area

Directions From the Woodstock Green follow U.S. Route 4 west for 1 mile beyond the west end of the Green. Woodstock Farmer's Market will be on your left. Take the next right on to Prosper Road and immediate hard right onto Rose Hill Road. King Farm Road is the first left. You can park next to the white farm house in front of the barns. The trail starts behind the barns, go under the wooden arch at the beginning of the trail and follow the signs for Poet's Trail.

History Poet's trail was inaugurated in 2012 and was part of a project of the Woodstock Union High School's AP English Class. Along the short trail you will encounter not only poetry, but also eclectic sculptures installed on the King Farm's hills and pastures.

Photo: Beginning of Poet's Trail

