

Completed in 1941, Entiat National Fish Hatchery (ENFH) is one of three hatcheries built to mitigate the impact of Grand Coulee Dam on salmon and steelhead. ENFH currently raises and releases at least 400,000 summer Chinook salmon. The summer Chinook program began in 2009, and by 2018, the run was setting records. A robust recreational fishery is built on Entiat NFH summer Chinook.

A wetland drainage area created in 2011 is now rich in plant and wildlife diversity. A trout pond used for special events is surrounded by young trees. The riverside Red Willow Trail provides views and interpretation of riparian conservation projects.
