

Refuge and Responsibility

After the Union victory at Fort Donelson, the area became a refuge for many African Americans seeking freedom and protection. By 1863, African Americans were joining regiments of the United States Colored Troops at Fort Donelson. Many sacrificed their lives for their country and their freedom.

To learn more, visit: www.nps.gov/fodo

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE