

The Desert

National Park Service
U.S. Department of the Interior

While deserts are found from the equator to the polar regions, the best-known American deserts are in the Nation's southwestern region. Among the areas established to protect such arid landscapes are: Death Valley, Joshua Tree, Organ Pipe Cactus, and Saguaro National Monuments, and Big Bend National Park.

