

The Spectacle

From the Office with the Doors Closed

Hello! Kendell is away on vacation in California right now, so I'm pinch hitting for him. We're heading into the second half of the summer; the number of visitors is beginning to drop, the students will be returning to school, and before we know it, we'll be decorating for Christmas (which I'm sure you know, is my favorite time of year).

I would like to take some time to thank all of you, staff and volunteers, for your hard work this past spring and summer. We expanded our programs to include roving interpretation, daily guided tours, establishing a presence at WIMSA, and extended coverage of the site. Maintenance has also been busy working around the archeological digs and the restoration of the front steps, in addition to their unending daily tasks. Mary Troy has been meeting with the curators from Mount Vernon to assess the condition of their items in our collection, and has also been busy with cleaning and seasonal changes in the house.

Recently Kara Walker and Becca Withers presented a guided tour of the house with a different "spin." Inspired by Karen Kinzey, Kara and Becca did a good deal of research on the role of religion at Arlington House, and its profound effect on the life of Robert E. Lee. The program was a great success, and the visitors who attended it seemed to enjoy it very much.

I congratulate Karen, Kara, and Becca for tackling such an interesting and sensitive subject. Over the past few years the staff here at ARHO has showed itself to be willing to discuss such controversial and frankly divisive subjects like slavery, secession, and the causes and effects of the Civil War. Sometimes the stories are not pleasant and not what we, or the visitors, would like to hear. A newspaperman from the old John Wayne movie "The Man Who Shot Liberty Vance" remarks that when the legend becomes fact, prints the legend. He could have been speaking for the way most Americans like to think of their history.

We will continue to talk about fact and legend in two of our programs coming up in the next few months. On Saturday, September 11, we will host "Remembering September 11", when several of us who were working on that terrible day will share our experiences with the public. On Friday October 8, the title of our Annual Fall

Evening Open House will be "Lee and Brown at Harper's Ferry." Activities will include another great musical performance by Gilmore's Light Ensemble, a living history program by a group that does pre Civil War U. S. Marines, and discussions about Lee's role in the Harper's Ferry Raid.

We will also feature some programs that will explore if John Brown wasn't the only one who was plotting in 1859. Mark down Friday, October 8, on your calendar. We look forward to seeing you then!

Significant Historic Events in August

August, 1845

While the Lees were stationed at Fort Hamilton, New York, GWP Custis began his “pilgrimage” to the great scenes of the American Revolution. In August he was the guest of honor at a reception sponsored by the city of New York and another at the home of Alderman Peters, to which Mrs. Custis, Mary Lee and the Lee’s twelve-year old son Custis accompanied him.

August, 1849

In a letter to Francis Nelson, his estate manager, GWP Custis implied that 1849 had been the most profitable season in his forty-seven years of farming. Mr. Custis received a dollar a bushel for his crop of red wheat, which more than repaid him for the cost of the lime and marl with which he had fertilized the fields.

August, 1836

GWP Custis was made a member of Philodemic [“lover of the common people”] Society of Georgetown (District of Columbia) and was asked by the Society to paint another large equestrian portrait of Washington for it.

August, 1849

Robert E. Lee was in Newport, Rhode Island where he had gone to see about some buildings for Fort Adams. He was greatly concerned about his family’s health since they were staying at Arlington during the hottest part of the summer and were therefore subject to malaria and other warm weather diseases. “I pray that you all may be preserved; Lee wrote. “I should much prefer being at A[rlington] with you that here.”

Mid-August, 1859

The Lee Family left for West Point, and Mr. Custis, whose wife had died in April, went with them. (Lee had returned home to Arlington in July for about a month, and in returned to West Point to reassume his duties as Superintendent of the Military Academy.) Colonel Lee took Mr. Custis on a trip to Niagara Falls, “but nothing could take his mind off his beloved Arlington,” which had been left in charge of a neighbor, Robert Ball.

August 2, 1754

Pierre Charles L’Enfant, future designer of the United States Capital, was born in Paris.

August 8, 1863

In a formal letter, General Lee offered his resignation to Confederate President Jefferson Davis. Robert E. Lee had not only been criticized in the press but was also sill partially incapacitated from an illness (probably a heart attack) which had struck him late in March. Replying on August 11, Davis asked rhetorically where he could find the commander who possessed “greater ability which you believe to be required. ...[O]ur country could not bear to lose you.”

August 10, 1805

Ann Fitzhugh, mother of Mrs. GWP Custis, died at the age of 58 after “a long and painful illness.” Only three months earlier Molly Custis had lost her first child on the day it was born (May 15, 1805). (Date File)

August 10, 1933

Arlington House was transferred from the War Department to the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior. On the same day many other parks in Virginia and the District of Columbia were placed under the jurisdiction of the National Park Service, including Appomattox, Petersburg National Battlefield, Ford’s Theatre, the Lincoln Memorial, National Capital Parks, the Mall, Rock Creek Park, Theodore Roosevelt Island, the Washington Monument, and the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

August 19, 1846

Captain Robert E. Lee received orders to leave Fort Hamilton, New York and to proceed via Washington to San Antonio, Texas, there to join the staff of Brigadier General John Wool. The Lees arranged to sell their home, packed their furniture, and were back at Arlington by the end month.

Robert E. Lee, 39-years old and still a captain, was now to see combat action for the first time and was given the opportunity to distinguish himself in the Mexican War.

August 21, 1831

Nat Turner led one of the most bloody slave insurrections in the history of the United States. Over fifty whites were killed, most on the first day of the revolt. On August 23, Lee heard about the insurrection at Old Point Comfort (Norfolk, Virginia) where he was stationed, only fifty miles from Southampton County, the scene of the rebellion.

“The insurrection had a thousand repercussions. Apprehensions spread through the South. In Richmond the concern was so acute that Major Worth, Lee’s old commandant at West Point, who was then in the garrison at Fort Monroe, was sent on a special journey to Bellona Arsenal to see that the arms stored there were secure against seizure. At Old Point, as a measure of precaution, Colonel Eustis put into effect a series of regulations for the exclusion to African Americans from the post. This greatly embarrassed the engineers and increased the long-developing friction that was to lead to a ‘post war’ between them and the colonel.” Five additional companies of artillery were brought to Fort Monroe, and the presence of their officers added to the social life of the fort.

AN IMPORTANT REMINDER

Please contact Delphine Gross no later than the 20th of each month with availability dates and times to be posted the following month (Please call by August 20th with September information). Even if you are a regularly scheduled VIP please contact Delphine to confirm your availability. Again, the contact number is (703) 235-1530 ext. 227. Please leave the dates and times you are available on the voice mail. Your cooperation is greatly appreciated.

Return of the VIP Field Trip!!!

This year our destination for the volunteer trip will be the Lee Chapel and Museum at Washington and Lee University and some of Lexington's other historic attractions. This will be a day long trip; Lexington is approximately three hours from Arlington.

The Park Service will reimburse volunteers for their lunches (limit $10.00 per volunteer). A Park Service bus has been reserved for our trip on Saturday, September 25, 2004. Please call (703 235-1530 ext. 227) or e-mail (Delphine_Gross@nps.gov) to reserve your seat on the bus by August 20. The bus seats about 26. More details will follow.

The September 25th date is tentative because a driver has not been assigned; also we could lose use of the bus if the White House, Director or Deputy Director of the Park Service wants to use the bus on the same day. If we lose the bus you will be notified and we will reschedule the trip.

Significant Historic Events in August (continued)

Meanwhile, on the larger scene, many southerners were terrified, "always mindful of the horrors of the slave uprising in Santo Domingo" in the 1790s, and they blamed the Nat Turner revolt on the northern abolitionist William Lloyd Garrison and his newspaper, The Liberator.

August 23, 1852

Colonel Lee left Arlington to assume his new position as Superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point. (Mrs. Lee and the children stayed on at Arlington temporarily.) "Behind him at Soller's Point [in Baltimore], he left more than three years of work on a stone fort of a type that within a decade would be made obsolete by new, more powerful weapons of war. It was the last engineering work he would do for the United States.

RECIPE OF THE MONTH

In the book Growing Up in the 1850's, the Journal of Agnes Lee, edited with a foreword by Mary Custis Lee deButts, reminiscences by Mildred Lee are also included. Mildred recalls that the garden at Arlington contained yellow Jasmine and many different types of roses. Mildred thought that the damask and hundred-leaf roses were the sweetest of them, and she remembered that "Nurse" and Mammy" used them to make rosewater that was stored in tall bottles in the storeroom. (The storeroom is now the hallway where the wheelchair lift is located and has been altered since the family occupied Arlington.) Rosewater is a fragrant, flavorful essence resulting from the distillation of rose petals in water.

In the early 1800's rosewater was important as an ingredient in flavoring puddings, cakes, cookies, pancake batter, as well as savory dishes such as meat pies. It was also used to perfume the well water used in the pitchers in the bedchambers for bathing.

By the mid-1800's, vanilla became widely available and cookbooks of the day cite vanilla more often than rosewater. The use of rosewater by North Americans fell except in areas where those of Middle-Eastern descent continued to use rosewater in preparing cakes and other sweets.

Rosewater is now available in some grocery stores and from on-line sources such as The Vermont Country Store catalog, www.vermontcountrystore.com, where its use is recommended as a cleanser for face and neck "to provide a delightful and fragrant pick-me-up in the middle of a long day or anytime." Rosewater is less concentrated than other extracts so you can use more, however it also differs in intensity depending on the brand.

The following recipe is from The Robert E. Lee Family Cooking and Housekeeping Book by Anne Carter Zimmer. Mrs. Zimmer describes these cakes or cookies as "luscious and unusual, with crisp edges, a texture between shortbread and poundcake, and the scent of butter and roses." She says chopped rose geranium leaves can be used as a substitute for rose water.

Lauderdale Jumbles

1 lb. of butter
1 lb. of sugar
1 lb. of flour
4 eggs

Cream the butter and the sugar, then the eggs beaten lightly together, not separating the whites from the yellow, add the flour- & seasoning to taste- nutmeg & brandy- or rose water- as may be preferred-. Bake in papers in small round cakes- in a flat pan- less butter can be used but this is the original recipe and in a colder climate is not too much.

2 c. (4 sticks butter)
2 c. sugar
3 ¾ c. sifted flour
2 t. nutmeg plus 2 T. brandy or ¼ cup rosewater or 3 T. chopped rose geranium leaves
4 eggs

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Have ingredients at room temperature. Line muffin tins with baking papers. Resift flour with nutmeg if used. Add rose water or brandy to beaten eggs, or sprinkle chopped rose geranium leaves into baking cups. Follow original directions for combining. Allow 2 level tablespoons batter for each cake. Bake 15-20 minutes or until barely colored and a toothpick comes out clean. Makes about 60.
