Description:

Records created by Thomas Boles, Jr., first Superintendent at Hawaii National Park from 1922 to 1926. In 1921, at the age of 40, Boles applied for the job of Superintendent at Hot Springs National Park in Arkansas, but the National Park Service felt that his civil engineering expertise better qualified him as the Superintendent of Hawaii National Park. After a five year assignment in Hawaii, he joined the Pacific Electric Railway in Los Angeles in 1926. In Los Angeles, Boles met Horace Albright, the deputy director of the National Park Service, who told him about a job opening as Superintendent of Carlsbad Cave National Monument in New Mexico, now Carlsbad Caverns National Park. He started there in April 1927 and worked to 1946, when Boles left Carlsbad Caverns for a position at Hot Springs National Park. Boles retired from the National Park Service in 1951.

Thomas Boles Jr. (1881-1973) married Inez J. "Jimmie" Green (1892-1962) and had one child, Margaret(1917-1993).

This collection originated in the Carlsbad Caverns National Park Museum Collection and was transferred to Hawaii Volcanoes National Park in 2016. It was consequently accessioned in 2017 and cataloged in 2021.

Acquisition:

Collection originated at Carlsbad Caverns National Park (CAVE) in 2009. CAVE received the collection from James McGuire, a grandson of Thomas Boles, on April 16, 2009. In 2016, CAVE transferred the collection to HAVO. HAVO accessioned the collection in 2017 and cataloged it in 2021.

Processing:

This collection was processed and cataloged by Coquelicot Shirey on 2/25/2021.

Arrangement:

This collection is organized into five series by format: Series I: Scrapbook; Series II: Prints; Series III: Stereoscopic Prints; Series IV: Negatives; Series V: Ephemera.

After format, items in these series are organized by size, when applicable. Otherwise, items were kept in original order as they were received.

This collection was not cataloged beyond the Series Level, as the File Unit Level does not work for the organization of the collection and the Item Level is a separate directory in ICMS not used by any other archival collection at this park. Museum staff worried that information cataloged at the Item Level would be lost during ICMS transfers or would not be utilized since no other collection uses the Item Level in ICMS.

Extent:

This collection totals 692 EA.

April 18, 1926" Back - "Lava stream burning houses, and just beginning to touch the road, which it soon crossed, and crushed the store shown on the right. I slept in this store from 8PM until 1120 PM, as the lava was approaching very slowly, but at that time was routed out by native watchers, as a fresh flow was seen coming down on top of the old flow. Thomas Boles.,"   | 4   | 26          |
| Front- "Tai Sing Loo 1926. April 18, 1926. Red hot lava streaming down over the doomed Hawaiian village of Hoopuloa 4:15 am" Back - "As the stream of lava crossed the road, a large round boulder, red hot, rolled from the top of the pile and knocked the Chinese store off its foundation and set fire to it, and while it was burning it was crushed by the front of the lava stream striking it. The mass of lava 50 feet high, and 1500 feet wide moved only about 2 to 5 feet per minute, but crept through stone walls as they were tissue paper. Not much noise to it, but sounded like someone rolling around a great big barrel of broken bottles. The black mass was all red hot, with cascades of incandescent cinders pouring through the gaps. Thomas Boles.," | 4   | 27          |

The Chinese store in which I slept until 1120 pm is shown crushed and burning on the far side of this picture. Thomas Boles.,"  | 4   | 28          |
