SEE DIFFERENTLY

Bringing together art, nature, history, and adventure, the Gateway Arch is an inspiration as well as a destination. Founded by the National Park Service in 1935, the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial stretches from the Old Courthouse to the steps overlooking the Mighty Mississippi. In between, the Gateway Arch rises 630 feet high, a bold monument to the pioneering spirit. Spend a few hours or make it a day. The Gateway Arch will change your perspective, inside and out.

Whether it's your first visit or your fiftieth, the Gateway Arch never fails to inspire. Come stroll the lush grounds in search of the perfect view. As much art as it is engineering, the Gateway Arch exerts a pull that's undeniable.

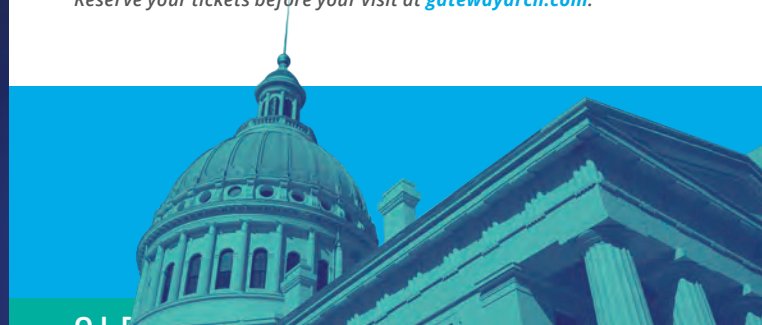

While the grounds are free, timed tickets are required for entry into the Gateway Arch facility through June 30, 2018.
