PREFACE

Jefferson National Expansion Memorial was established by Executive Order 7253, signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt on December 21, 1935. The park was created to commemorate St. Louis' role in the westward expansion of the United States, specifically mentioning the site as the location of "the Spanish Colonial office where, during the administration of Thomas Jefferson . . . the Upper Louisiana Purchase was transferred to the United States; the Government House at which, on March 9, 1804, . . . Captain Amos Stoddard of the United States Army . . . took formal possession of the Louisiana Purchase and raised the American flag; . . . the old French Cathedral of St. Louis, earliest home of religion on the western bank of the Mississippi; the place where Laclede and Chouteau established the first civil government west of the Mississippi; the place where Lafayette was received by a grateful people; the places where the Santa Fe, the Oregon, and other trails originated; the place where Lewis and Clark prepared for their trip of discovery and exploration; and the Court House in which the Dred Scott case was tried."

Jefferson National Expansion Memorial collects and preserves archival materials that document the exploration and settlement of the American West, and particularly the role of St. Louis as the Gateway to the West. These manuscripts and records are collected as an extension of the three dimensional holdings of Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, further explaining and describing the artifact collections, and perhaps supplanting them when objects are lacking or unavailable. The human dimensions of the park's holdings are strengthened through the acquisition of personal correspondence, diaries, journals, sketchbooks, and photograph albums. These materials, along with records that document the administrative history of the park, comprise valuable and irreplaceable reference sources for historians and other scholars.

Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Archives was formally organized in 1988 to insure the protection of these unique collections, and to make them available to the public. A small reference library containing titles on westward expansion, Native Americans, St. Louis history, and the National Park Service is also available. The Library and Archives are available by appointment only. Researchers wishing to visit the Library and Archives are invited to call or write to make the necessary arrangements.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Archives is grateful to the JNEM staff who recognized the historic value of these records and transferred them to archival storage, and to archives interns like Suellyn Lathrop who worked so hard to arrange, describe, and preserve these records.

The Archives is also grateful to Jefferson National Expansion Historical Association for its unflagging support. The preservation of this collection and other JNEM archival resources would not have been possible without the generous financial commitments made by the Association.

INTRODUCTION TO THE COLLECTION

During the early 1930's, Luther Ely Smith, a St. Louis lawyer, championed a movement to build a memorial to St. Louis' role in Westward Expansion on the riverfront. Smith gained the support of Mayor Bernard Dickmann, who, on December 15, 1933, called a group of civic and business leaders into his office to discuss Smith's plan. The group liked the idea and formed a temporary committee to look further into the matter. A civic committee was formed to work for the establishment of a federal memorial to commemorate the Louisiana Purchase of 1803 and to honor President Thomas Jefferson and those who explored and occupied the American West. In the next few months this group planned to raise money and generate public interest.

In April 1934, the committee obtained a state charter as Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Association and acquired a nonprofit designation. The group intended to arouse public interest, adopt suitable plans, solicit money and property, and improve a site for ... a suitable and permanent public memorial to the men who made possible the western territorial expansion of the United States, particularly President Jefferson, his aides Livingston and Monroe, the great explorers, Lewis and Clark, and the hardy hunters, trappers, frontiersmen and pioneers who contributed to the territorial expansion and development of these United States, and thereby to bring before the public of this and future generations the history of our development and induce familiarity with the patriotic accomplishments of these great builders of our country.

Over the course of the next 30 years, the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Association, or "Jenny Mae," laid the groundwork for what was to become Jefferson National Expansion Memorial. Most significantly, JNEMA conducted the competition which resulted in the choice of Eero Saarinen's arch design as the central commemorative feature of the park. JNEMA worked with the United States Territorial Expansion Memorial Commission (USTEMC), the National Park Service, and several members of Congress in their efforts to establish a national park on the St. Louis riverfront.

Series 16. United States Territorial Expansion Memorial Commission

In their efforts to create a national memorial on the St. Louis riverfront, Luther Ely Smith and Bernard F. Dickmann proposed a commission patterned after the George Rogers Clark Memorial Commission. In March 1934, joint resolutions were introduced in the House and Senate "authorizing the creation of a Federal Memorial Commission" to construct a permanent memorial. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt signed the bill into law June 15, 1934, establishing the United States Territorial Expansion Memorial Commission (USTEMC) "for the purpose of considering and formulating plans for designing and constructing a permanent memorial on the Mississippi River at St. Louis, Missouri." The Commission would have fifteen members: three chosen by the president, three by the House of Representatives, three by the Senate, and six by Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Association. On December 19, 1934, USTEMC held its first meeting in St. Louis. At this meeting the commissioners received a briefing from the Association, reviewed plans for the memorial, visited the historic site on the riverfront, and elected an executive committee with Senator Barkley as chairman. On February 1, 1935 the group met with President Roosevelt, presented a general outline of development, answered questions about the architectural competition, noted the number of St. Louis unemployed, predicted a starting date, and estimated the project's duration. On April 13 (by chance Thomas Jefferson's birthday), the Commission's executive committee approved plans for the memorial. Records in this series include correspondence, financial records, membership records, minutes, reports, resolutions, special events, statements, transcripts, and records regarding Vrooman v. City of St. Louis et al.

Series 16. United States Territorial Expansion Memorial Commission

In their efforts to create a national memorial on the St. Louis riverfront, Luther Ely Smith and Bernard F. Dickmann proposed a commission patterned after the George Rogers Clark Memorial Commission. In March 1934, joint resolutions were introduced in the House and Senate "authorizing the creation of a Federal Memorial Commission" to construct a permanent memorial.

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt signed the bill into law June 15, 1934, establishing the United States Territorial Expansion Memorial Commission "for the purpose of considering and formulating plans for designing and constructing a permanent memorial on the Mississippi River at St. Louis, Missouri." The Commission would have fifteen members: three chosen by the president, three by the House of Representatives, three by the Senate, and six by Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Association. On December 19, 1934, USTEMC held its first meeting in St. Louis. At this meeting the commissioners received a briefing from the Association, reviewed plans for the memorial, visited the historic site on the riverfront, and elected an executive committee with Senator Barkley as chairman. On February 1 the group met with President Roosevelt, presented a general outline of development, answered questions about the architectural competition, noted the number of St. Louis unemployed, predicted a starting date, and estimated the project's duration. On April 13 (by chance Thomas Jefferson's birthday), the Commission's executive committee approved plans for the memorial. Records in this series include correspondence, financial records, membership records, minutes, reports, resolutions, special events, statements, transcripts, and records regarding Vrooman v. City of St. Louis et al.
