

Jimmy Carter National Historical Park

Bishop William Decker Johnson

Johnson Home Industrial College

William Decker Johnson was described by Jimmy Carter as “a pioneering black leader” who transformed Carter’s life. He was a bishop in the African Methodist Episcopal Church for five Midwestern states and founded the Johnson Home Industrial College—a private African American primary, vocational, and high school that served children around Archery, Georgia.