

Junction Schoolhouse

Equal Educational Opportunities for All

President Lyndon Johnson started his education at the Junction Schoolhouse at age 4. On April 11, 1965, with his first teacher, Kate Dadrich Loney, by his side, he signed into law The Elementary and Secondary Education Act. Part of the law emphasized that every child must have equal opportunities for an exceptional education regardless of their race.

To learn more, visit: www.nps.gov/lyjo

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE