

Visitor Guide

In an attempt to intercept and capture the Nez Perce who had been pursued by the Army since June, Colonel Samuel Sturgis charged into the confines of Canyon Creek. Heavy rifle fire from the Nez Perce halted the advance, and allowed their families to escape. The painting is by Nez Perce artist Nakia Williamson-Cloud. Property of Nez Perce NHP, NPS.

Destinies Determined at Canyon Creek

The events at Canyon Creek on September 13, 1877 is often considered a minor skirmish during that summer of hostility, but the actions of the Nez Perce (Nimiipuu), the U.S. Army and their Crow (Apsáalooke) scouts, would reverberate through the rest of that fateful summer and into the fall. The effects of the Battle at Canyon Creek would contribute to a profound sense of loss, betrayal, and weariness among the Nimiipuu that would eventually lead to their decision to end the long summer of conflict.

Having traveled over 1,000 miles and with a recent refusal of help from the Crow, the people were in need of shelter and rest. The Nimiipuu had just eluded an ambush out of Yellowstone National Park and had skillfully circumvented Seventh U.S. Cavalry troops led by Colonel Samuel Sturgis. On September 12 the Nez Perce families rested in a grassy area near the mouth of Canyon Creek they called tepahlewam wakuspah or Place Similar to Split Rocks Near Tolo Lake, Idaho.

On September 13, as young Nez Perce men scouted the area for supplies and troops, Colonel Sturgis and 360 men crossed the Yellowstone River and quickly discovered the campsite at Canyon Creek. As Cavalry soldiers approached, the Nimiipuu families spotted the huge dust cloud and heard the thunderous roar of approaching horses. As the Nez Perce quickly broke camp, Nez Perce men climbed the cliff sides of the canyon and began firing upon charging soldiers. The gun fire slowed the cavalry's advance, forcing the troopers to dismount some 500 yards away from the Nez Perce column. Nez Perce rifle fire kept the soldiers pinned, allowing their families to escape.

The Army failed to stop the Nez Perce at Canyon Creek, but it demonstrated that the once-friendly Crow were now openly siding with the army and that Canada was indeed the only option. The vision of safety in Canada was, however, even more distant with the loss of so many horses. "At Canyon Creek fight we lost many horses, and this crippled our transportation, making it hard work for us to get along," said Yellow Bull. Great unknowns rest upon the legacy of Canyon Creek. What if that day's travel had not been lost to fighting? What if the horse herd had stayed intact and continued to supply fresh mounts to the weary families? What if the Crow people had been able to provide refuge? Three weeks after Canyon Creek, the Nez Perce conflict came to an end, only forty miles from Canada and freedom. Could the Nez Perce have made the border if not for the repercussions of a harsh September day?

Canyon Creek Today

Located 8 miles north of Laurel, Montana, the Canyon Creek site is accessed via State Route 532. The Friends of Canyon Creek recently built a wayside interpretive shelter featuring a sandstone monument dedicated in 1958. The visitor site provides off-road parking and a shaded structure. In 2006 the National Park Service and the Friends of Canyon Creek installed new interpretive panels. In partnership with the U.S. Forest Service Nez Perce National Historic Trail, additional panels will be installed in 2008. Travelers along Interstate 90 and 94 are encouraged to take the brief drive to Canyon Creek and to explore Laurel, Montana.

For more information, please call Big Hole Battlefield at (406) 689-3155.

The interpretive shelter at Canyon Creek is open everyday.

Idaho

Confluence Overlook
Donald MacKenzie established a trading post near the confluence of the Clearwater River in September 1812. The Nimiipuu were not interested in the fur trade and MacKenzie sold out to the British.

Coyote's Fishnet
Coyote and Black Bear got into an argument. In frustration, Coyote threw his fishing net on a hill and tossed Black Bear on another, turning him into stone. Both features are visible today.

Ant and Yellowjacket
Ant and Yellowjacket were arguing over who had the right to fish for Salmon when they got into an argument. Coyote asked them to stop. They continued to fight, whereby Coyote turned them into a stone arch that is visible today.

Spalding
The Spalding site has seen many uses by the Nimiipuu and was the location of Henry and Eliza Spalding's mission. The park's visitor center and museum is located here as well. Nearby is where the Spalding's first settled in 1836.

Northern Idaho Indian Agency
As part of the treaty process, the U.S. Government set up an agency to oversee the implementation of the terms of the treaties.

Fort Lapwai
In 1862, a detachment of volunteers chose this location for their fort. The 1883 officers' quarters at the southwest end of the parade ground is one of the few original buildings to have survived.

Craig Donation Land Claim
This is the site of the claim by the first Euro-American settler in Idaho. William Craig was a mountain man, an interpreter, and friend of the Nimiipuu.

St. Joseph's Mission
This was the first Roman Catholic mission among the Nimiipuu. It was dedicated in Sept. 1874 by Father Joseph Cataldo, who had built it. The church and grounds are currently closed.

Cottonwood Skirmishes
Skirmishes with the U.S. Army and volunteers occurred near here on July 3 and 5, 1877.

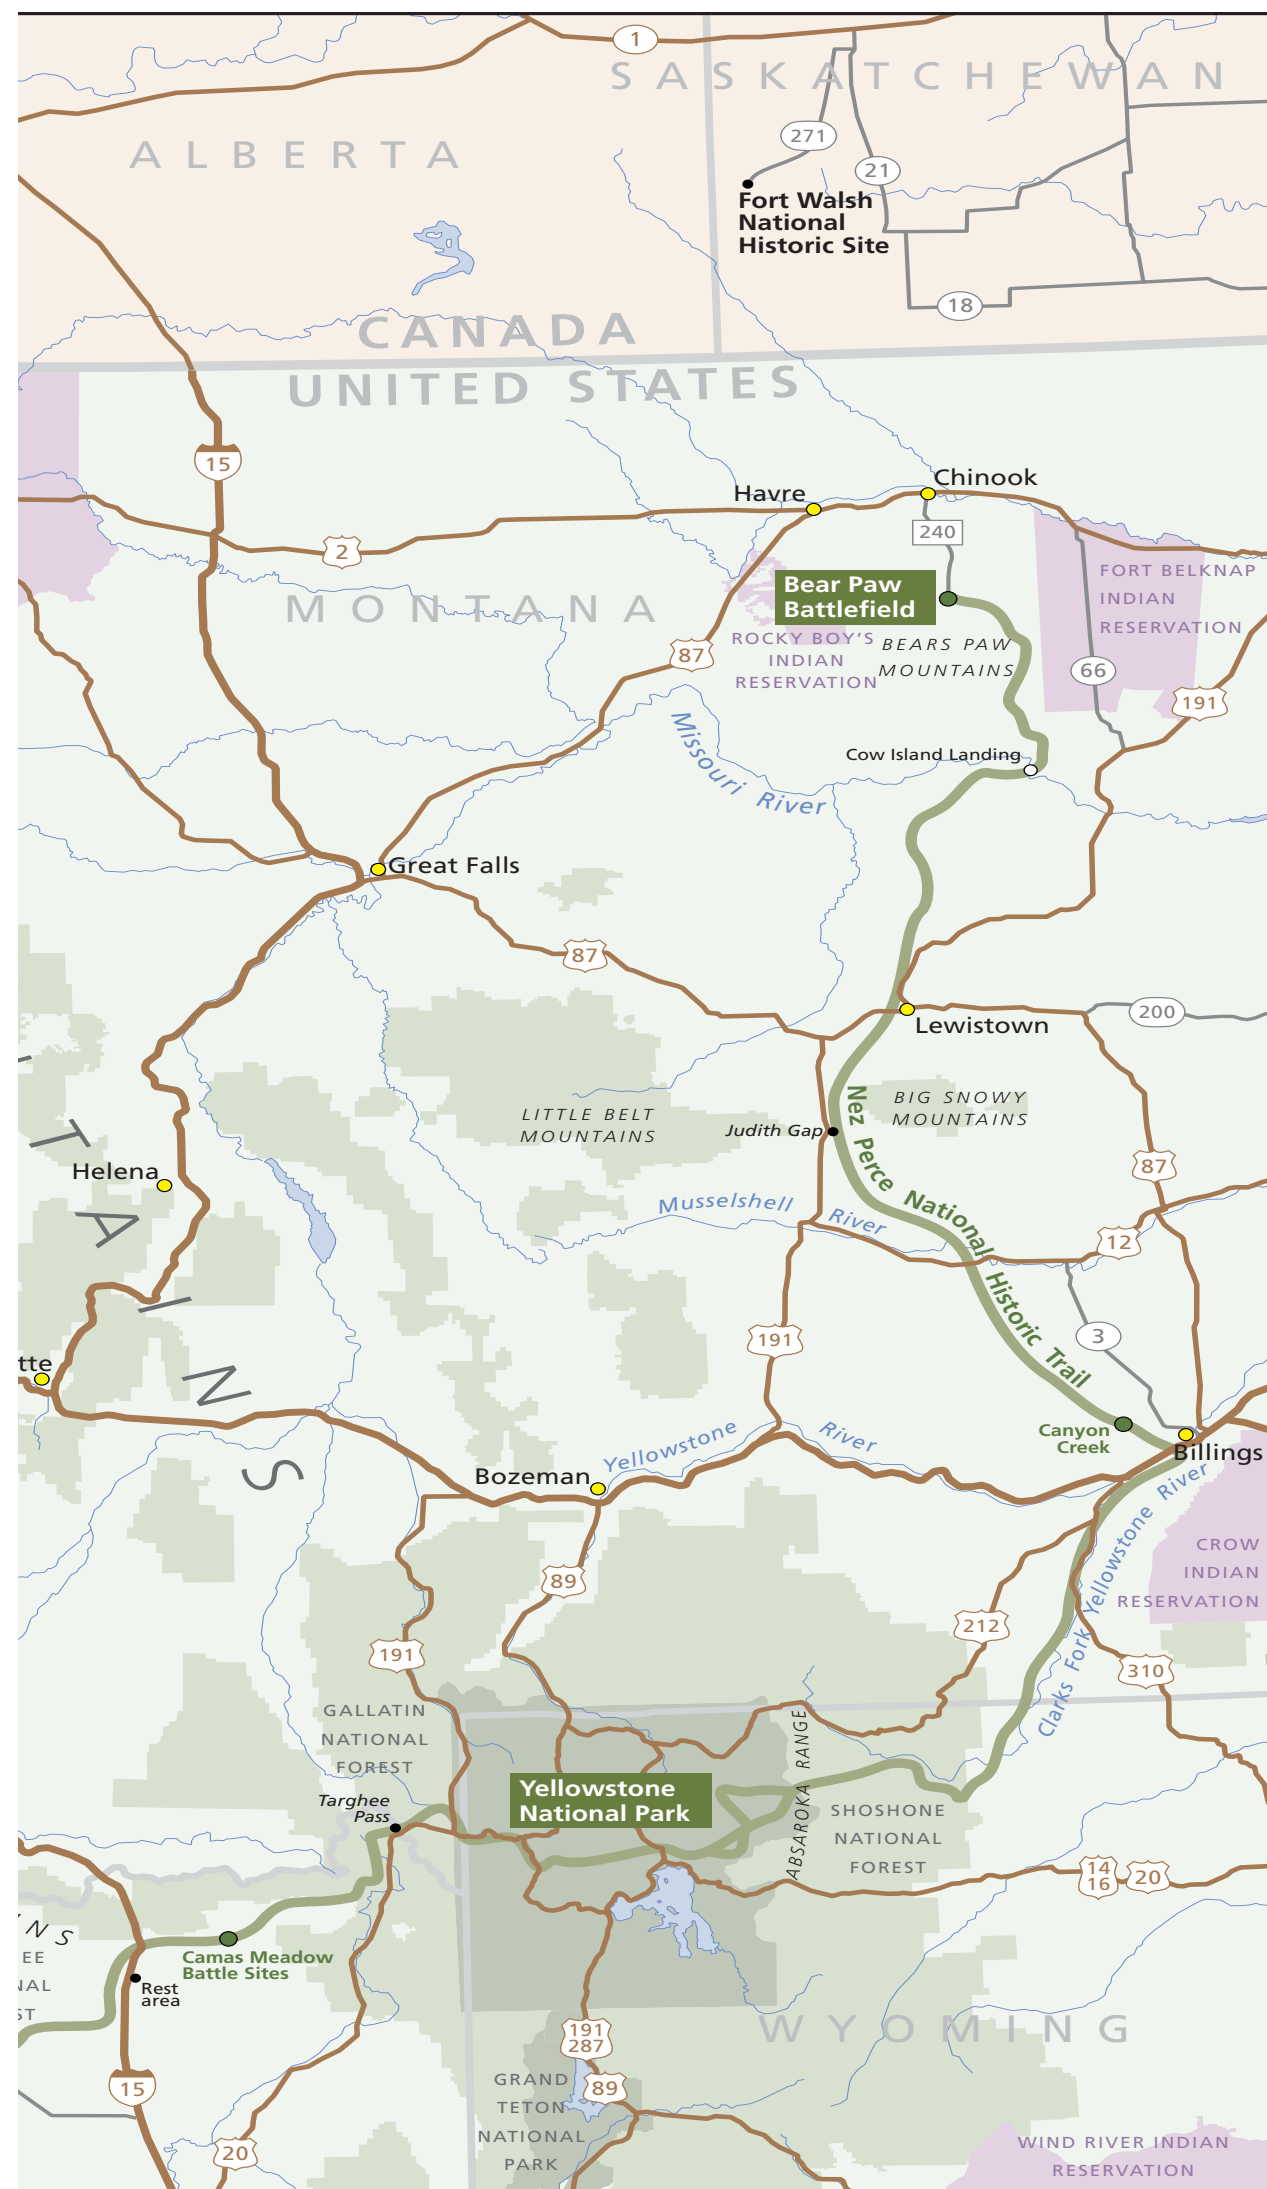

Weis Rockshelter
More than 8,000 years ago humans first made this home and continuously inhabited the area until about 600 years ago.

Camas Prairie
Where wheat fields stretch to the horizon today, camas once grew. Camas bulbs were a major food source for the Nimiipuu. They gathered here in late summer and early fall to dig them.

Tolo Lake
In 1877, the non-treaty bands congregated at this ancient council site, known as Tepahlewam, before moving onto the reservation. Frustrated by injustices against the Nez Perce, three Nimiipuu warriors raided homesteads on the Salmon River from this site.

White Bird Battlefield
On June 17, 1877, the first battle of the Nez Perce War was fought here. The U.S. cavalry was defeated with heavy losses and the Nimiipuu began their long journey to find safety and sanctuary. A self-guided walking tour of the battlefield is available at the trailhead.

Clearwater Battlefield
On July 11, 1877 Gen. Oliver O. Howard crossed the Clearwater River and hoped to take the Nez Perce by surprise.

Montana

Big Hole National Battlefield

On the morning of August 9, 1877, U.S. troops surprised the Nez Perce who crossed the Bitterroots trying to evade capture. Between 60 and 90 Nez Perce men, women, and children were killed. The Army lost 29 soldiers and 40 wounded.

Canyon Creek

After emerging from Yellowstone National Park, the Nez Perce were pursued by the cavalry. In a rearguard action the Nez Perce were able to gain time by successfully stopping the pursuing troops.

Bear Paw Battlefield

Just 40 miles short of the Canadian border, the Nez Perce were besieged by the Army. With losses mounting, Joseph gave his rifle to General Howard, ending the siege on October 5, 1877. They had traveled 1,170 miles in the nearly four months since the first skirmishes.

Oregon

Dug Bar

At this traditional crossing of the Snake River, Joseph and his band crossed in May, 1877 as they left their homes in Oregon for the reservation in Idaho. Located in Hell's Canyon National Recreation Area, the site is accessible by either boat or a high clearance vehicle.

Joseph Canyon Viewpoint

The canyon seen from the overlook was one of the winter homes of the Nez Perce. Tradition holds that Chief Joseph was born in a cave along the east bank of the creek. Restrooms are available.

Old Chief Joseph's Gravesite

The remains of the elder Chief Joseph were reburied here in 1926. Nearby are the graves of other Nez Perce and some settlers.

Lostine Campsite

At the junction of the Lostine and Wallowa Rivers is a traditional Nez Perce summer campsite where Old Chief Joseph died in 1871. This landscape has changed little from the days before the area was settled. Not a developed site.

Washington

Burial Site of Chief Joseph the Younger

In 1885 Chief Joseph and his band were allowed to return to the Northwest from Indian Territory in Oklahoma. Joseph spent his remaining years on the Colville Reservation and died here in 1904. The cemetery is private property and a sacred place.

Nez Perce Campsites at Nespelem

Chief Joseph's band continued their traditional way of life while living on the Colville Reservation. These were their winter and summer homes and were the last places where Joseph lived. Not a developed site.

Nez Perce (Nee-Me-Poo) National Historic Trail

In 1986, Congress established the Nez Perce (Nee-Me-Poo) National Historic Trail to commemorate the 1877 War. The trail begins at Wallowa Lake in Oregon and extends 1,170 miles to the Bear Paw Battlefield in Montana. The trail is managed by the U.S. Forest Service in cooperation with other partners, including the National Park Service. Further information on sites to see and special events along the trail can be found on the web at: www.fs.fed.us/nphnt/.

His hopes came to naught and the fighting ended with the Nimiipuu withdrawing.

Heart of the Monster

This is the location of the Heart of the Monster, where Coyote defeated a monster and, in turn, created the Nimiipuu. Audio stations tell the story in English and in the Nez Perce languages.

Asa Smith Mission

In April 1839, Rev. and Mrs. Asa Smith established a mission in the Kamiah area. Unsited to the demands of such work, the Smiths left in 1841.

Lewis and Clark Long Camp

Near here Lewis and Clark camped in the spring of 1806 for nearly a month.

Canoe Camp

In the early fall of 1805, the Lewis and Clark expedition rested here and built canoes of hollowed-out logs for the final leg of their trip to the Pacific Ocean.

Lenore

For thousands of years, this village site was used by the Nez Perce and their ancestors.

Weippe Prairie

This was a root-gathering place for the Nimiipuu and it was here on September 20, 1805, that Lewis and Clark first met the Nez Perce. During the 1877 War, the Nimiipuu gathered here after the Battle of the Clearwater.

Pierce

In September 1860, gold was found on the Nez Perce reservation, triggering another treaty that reduced the size of the reservation. The other site of interest is the old Shoshone County courthouse, completed in 1862 and the oldest public building in Idaho.

Musselshell Meadow

For many generations, Nimiipuu have come here to dig for camas. General Howard camped here at the end of July, 1877 while pursuing the Nez Perce over the Lolo Trail.

Lolo Pass and Trail

This historic Nez Perce trail was used by Lewis and Clark in 1805 and 1806. During the 1877 War the Nez Perce followed the trail on into Montana. The U.S. Forest Service maintains a visitor center at Lolo Pass.

Looking Glass' 1877 Campsite

The Looking Glass Band tried to remain neutral in the conflict between the non-treaty Nez Perce. The Army attacked the village. Looking Glass regarded this as treachery and joined the others against the Army.

Buffalo Eddy

The unique petroglyphs of this area are evidence of the longevity of the Nimiipuu occupation of the area. Defacing federal archeological sites is a criminal offense.

Hasotino

Hasotino was a site used until the end of the nineteenth century and was located near an important eel fishery.

Camas Meadow Battle Site

After the tragedy at Big Hole, the Nimiipuu gained time by stealing more than 200 of the Army's pack mules and horses, halting their advance.

1877 Sites

Nez Perce National Historical Park includes a number of sites that mark important events related to the war of 1877. Some of the sites that are associated with the events of 1877 are listed below.

Spalding Visitor Center

Ranger programs on Nez Perce history and culture are featured here as well as exhibits, a film, and book store. Information on the park is also available. Directions: The visitor center is located ten miles east of Lewiston on US Hwy. 95.

White Bird Battlefield

White Bird battlefield marks the site of the first battle of the war. On the morning of June 17, 1877 soldiers of the First Cavalry Regiment accompanied by a handful of civilian volunteers clashed with the Nimiipuu. Nimiipuu warriors routed the First Cavalry and successfully protected their camp, suffering only three slightly wounded warriors. The U.S. Army suffered thirty-four dead and three wounded. Directions: The battlefield is located fifteen miles south of Grangeville on Hwy 95. A hiking trail is accessible two miles north of the town of Whitebird.

Lolo Trail and Pass

Visitors can retrace the route that the Nimiipuu took over the Bitterroot Mountains in 1877 on U.S. Highway 12 or on a primitive dirt road known as the Lolo Motorway (Forest Road 500). A rest area and visitor center are located at Lolo Pass. The rest area is open twenty-four hours a day. The visitor center is open seven days a week from mid-May through mid-September from 8:30 am to 5:30 pm (PDT). Call (208) 942-1234 for more information.

PLEASE NOTE: Forest Road 500 is suitable only for high clearance vehicles. Trailers are not recommended. For more information please contact the Lochsa Ranger District office at (208) 926-4274 or the Clearwater National Forest website at www.fs.fed.us/r1/clearwater/

Big Hole National Battlefield

Early in the morning of August 9, 1877, soldiers under the command of Colonel John Gibbon attacked the encampment at Big Hole. Gibbon's attack killed upwards of ninety men, women and children. Despite the carnage, the Nimiipuu rallied, trapping Gibbon's men for 24 hours, allowing their families to escape. Directions: Big Hole National Battlefield is located ten miles west of Wisdom, Montana on state highway 43.

Bear Paw Battlefield

On September 30, 1877, the U.S. Army attacked and besieged the Nimiipuu camp on Snake Creek. After five days of fighting in atrocious weather, Chief Joseph brought hostilities to end, forty miles short of the Canadian border. Some escaped to Canada under White Bird, many remained and were sent into exile to Oklahoma. Directions: The battlefield is located located 15 miles south of Chinook, MT on Highway 240.

Archeological sites, battlefields and artifacts are protected by state and federal law. Anyone who injures, destroys or removes artifacts or objects of antiquity on park lands is subject to arrest and prosecution to the maximum extent of the law.

Please call (208) 843-7001 in Idaho and (406) 689-3155 in Montana to report incidents.
