The New River

Wild, Wonderful
Whitewater
in West Virginia

The New River is one of the oldest rivers in the world. From quiet beginnings in North Carolina, the New River meanders northward, growing in volume and velocity, until it reaches central West Virginia and enters the New River Gorge. The New River Gorge has an average width of one mile; the rim depth ranges from seven hundred to thirteen hundred feet; and the river drops approximately two hundred and forty feet in fourteen miles creating the biggest whitewater river in the east. The New River is an ideal combination of magnificent scenery and whitewater adventure. The whitewater rafting season is April through October. The following outfitters are licensed by the Department of Natural Resources, State of West Virginia, to offer commercial rafting trips on the New River.
