

Drinking Fountain

Lake Guernsey State Park - - - Wyoming

Here certainly is the peak accomplishment in naturalistic making of a provision for bubbler and tap. It is a temptation hardly resistible to state that the rock was smitten with a rod and that the water gushed forth in the best biblical tradition. However the section drawing below evidences too plainly to the contrary - a laborious business of drilling and pipe fitting. Smiting with a rod would have been easier.

PLAN

SECTION
Scale $\frac{3}{8}$ " = 1'-0"