FOUR SEASONS FOR YOU

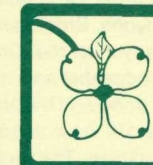

FALL serenity and colors

As the cool months of late October and November arrive, the dogwood, oak, aspen and others prepare for winter. In this process a rainbow of golds, yellows and reds explode throughout the parks. This is a quiet and beautiful time as your parks await the white mantle of winter.

WINTER wonderland

Winter snows turn Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Parks into a breathtaking new world. Hiking trails disappear and the mode of transportation becomes skiing and showshoeing. The magnificent Giants draped in snow stand vibrantly red against the white backdrop and deep blue sky. Stillness and solitude allow human reflection of nature's great masterpieces. Crisp, clear air invigorates the body and soul. A very special time in your parks. Visit during mid-week and enjoy reduced room rates.

SPRING into action

Springtime offers a degree of uncertainty to the Parks. Beautiful sunny days offer shirtsleeve skiing. Late storms can add more snow. Wisping fog rolls through the forest canopy. Meadows fill with the spring melt, becoming ponds hosting a chorus of frogs. As snow gives way to the warmth, the first signs of life struggle through the earth. An exciting time in your Parks.

SUMMER excitement

This is our peak season—the summer blends with high altitude freshness to provide the perfect climate all summer long. Park activity abounds on every front—hiking, fishing, nature walks and campfire events. The magic that is Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Parks is vividly evident in the greens, reds and blues as Giant Sequoias silhouette against a backdrop of clean, clear air in your parks.

Some Things to Remember When Visiting Your Parks

Be sure to bring warm clothes. Evenings in the mountains, even in the summer, can be quite cool. Sturdy walking shoes are a must!

When driving in to the Parks from November through May CARRY TIRE CHAINS. Your cooling system should be protected to 10° below zero.

During the winter, Giant Forest is accessible via California 198. Grant Grove is accessible via California 180. "The General's Highway" connecting Grant Grove to Giant Forest is open during the winter. May be closed due to snow. Call (209) 565-3341 for road information.

Pets are not allowed in bath accommodations, and must be under physical control at all times. Pets are not permitted on Park trails.

Food must be stored at all times, assisting the National Park Service in their efforts to maintain Park animals in their natural environment. Black bears eat anything you eat —carelessness with food leads to the death of the bear.

Guest staying in the rustic cabins may wish to bring a hatchet for cutting kindling and sleeping bags as the nights are cool. You are reminded that all food must be stored in your cabins.

Cooking is permitted in the rustic housekeeping cabins ONLY.
