

Tuskegee Airmen National Historic Site

Moton Field Hangar #1

During World War II, Moton Field was the Tuskegee, Alabama air base where the Army did an experiment to see if African Americans could fly military airplanes. Although the law did not allow blacks and whites to eat in the same dining room, the Tea Room in Hangar #1 was open to all—black and white.

To learn more, visit: www.nps.gov/tuai

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE