Tuskegee Airmen

The Tuskegee Airmen were the first African American pilots and ground crews to train for the Army Air Corps during World War II. They fought two wars--one against racial prejudice in the United States and another against the Axis powers overseas. Their success in fighting both wars is called a Double Victory.

To learn more, visit: www.nps.gov/tuai

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE