

Tupelo National Battlefield

The Battle of Tupelo

Confederate Forces Intercepted

In July 1864, Federal troops were ordered to stop the advance of Confederate forces toward Union supply lines. In Tupelo, Mississippi, Confederate soldiers fought fiercely but could not overpower the Federal troops. Neither side could claim a complete victory, but the railroad supporting Union forces remained intact.

To learn more, visit: www.nps.gov/tupe

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE