Narrative Description (Describe the historic and current condition of the property on one or more continuation sheets.)

The Thayer Lake East Shelter Cabin site is the ruin of a three-sided shelter. It was not built in the post-and-beam style typical of the other three-sided shelters. Instead, it consisted of logs laid horizontal to make three walls, with the fourth wall consisting of short logs at the two corners facing the lake. The logs had sawn ends and were saddle-notched to attach them at the corners. When documented, the site consisted of the cabin ruin, displaying up to three courses of wall logs ranging from twelve to twenty inches in diameter. The logs of the north/south axis are ten feet long, those of the other axis are fifteen feet long. No roof members were identified.

The 1937 camp stove and fireplace manual published by the USDA Forest Service for "Emergency Conservation Work" pictures a three-sided horizontal log cabin like the Thayer Lake East example and identifies it as an "Adirondack shelter." The roof drawn on the building in the manual is like that of the other three-sided shelter cabins built by Civilian Conservation Corps workers on the Admiralty Island canoe route. The Thayer Lake East ruin is definitely that of a cabin built differently from the other shelter cabins along the route.

The location of the site, at the edge of Thayer Lake where the trail to Distin Lake begins, is typical of shelter cabin placement along the canoe route. The trail in the area appears on the 1936 map of the canoe route, but a shelter cabin at Thayer Lake East is not shown.

Narrative Statement of Significance (Explain the significance of the property on one or more continuation sheets.)

The Thayer Lake East Shelter Cabin is the ruins of a three-sided log shelter located at the junction of the Distin Lake Trail with Thayer Lake on the Admiralty Island Canoe Route. The shelter is believed to have been built after 1936. It was built in a horizontal log style, not the post-and-beam style of the others. A Civilian Conservation Corps manual of 1937 describes this style as an "Adirondack shelter." The site continues to be a stop for canoers.
