

Wright Brothers National Memorial

The Tuskegee Airmen

Colonel George Roberts

General Benjamin O. Davis Jr.

The Tuskegee Airmen overcame racial discrimination during World War II. Roberts (left) was the first African American accepted into the military's pilot training program and the first African American officer to command a racially-mixed unit. Davis was the fourth African American graduate from West Point and the first African-American general in the Army Air Forces.

To learn more, visit: www.nps.gov/wrbr

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE