Welcome to Denali National Park and Preserve

Welcome to six million acres of wild land. Travelers to Denali National Park will experience landscapes that vary from low-lying boreal forest to high alpine tundra and snowy mountains that culminate in North America’s tallest peak, 20,310’ (6,190 m) Denali. Although the park is named for its highest peak, it encompasses more than just a mountain.

Denali National Park was initially established to conserve wildlife. Charles Sheldon, an early conservationist and hunter, spent time in the area studying Dall sheep. While here, he witnessed wide-scale market hunting. Consequently, he lobbied Congress to create Mount McKinley National Park specifically to protect Dall sheep. In 1980, with the passing of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act (ANILCA), Mount McKinley National Park not only tripled in size but was also renamed Denali National Park and Preserve.

Known around the world for its fantastic scenery and wildlife, Denali is a place of inspiration, exploration, and reflection for travelers like you. Open year-round, activities at all levels of interests and abilities can be found. Use this guide to make the most of your time in Denali—discover activities, learn about bus rides into the park, and plan a hike.

Information

Types of Buses:

- Tour Buses—Tan-colored tour buses include a driver-naturalist who will provide a narrated experience.
- Transit Buses—Green-colored transit and camper buses are non-narrated and allow ticketed visitors to get on or off anywhere along the park road to explore.

Purchasing Tickets:

- Online or By Phone—Reservations for all bus services and most campsites can be made at www.reservedenali.com or by phone at 800-622-7275 (nationwide) or 907-272-7275 (international). If you make ticket purchases online or by phone you can pick up your physical tickets at the Denali Bus Depot.
- In Person—Bus and campground reservations can be made in person at the Denali Bus Depot or the Riley Creek Mercantile.
- Drivers do not sell tickets on their buses.

Refund Policy: There is a $8.25 fee per tour bus ticket, transit bus ticket, and campground reservation to change or cancel a reservation up to seven days prior to departure. Purchases are nonrefundable within seven days of arrival date or days of departure.

Call 800-622-7275 or visit the Denali Bus Depot or Riley Creek Mercantile for more details.

Departures:

- Tour Buses—Depart from area hotels and the Denali Bus Depot. Check the pick-up location on your bus ticket.
- Transit Buses—Depart from Denali Bus Depot (except for the camper bus, which also picks up from Riley Creek Campground).

Entrance Fees: The park’s entrance fee will be added to the cost of your transit bus ticket unless you present a national park pass or valid entrance receipt.

Safety and Park Regulations

Wildlife Safety

Black Bears and Grizzly Bears:

- Hike with a group.
- Stay at least 300 yards (275 m) away from bears and never move closer to a bear.
- Avoid surprising bears, which could elicit a defensive reaction. Frequently make loud “people sounds,” such as talking loudly, singing, or yelling.
- Bear Spray—Carry bear spray and know how to use it. Bear spray should be easily accessible when hiking. While on a bus, bear spray should be in a plastic bag and stowed inside your backpack or another bag. Rentals are available at the Backcountry Information Center.
- Report any bear encounter to a ranger.

Bear Encounters:

- Gather your hiking group close together.
- Remove your bear spray from the holster.
- Never run from a bear.
- Never drop your pack.
- If a bear gets within range of bear spray (20 feet, 6 m), spray the bear. Aim low—the cloud of bear spray should hit the bear’s head.
- If a bear approaches you and acts “sneaky,” it is likely displaying curious behavior. When encountering a curious bear, you should stand your ground (don’t back away), yell at the bear, and try to look large and intimidating. Be aggressive with your voice and movements. If a curious bear attacks, fight back.
- If a bear moves toward you quickly and looks aggressive it is likely displaying defensive behavior. When encountering a defensive bear, you should appear large but non-threatening. Your movements and voice should be slow and soft. If the bear is not advancing, take the opportunity to slowly back away. If a defensive bear attacks, you should play dead. Do not move until you’re sure that the bear has left the area.

Moose:

- Stay Away—Moose look docile but may charge unexpectedly and try to kick or trample a perceived threat. Stay at least two bus-lengths (25 yards, 23 m) away from moose.
- Run Away—If a moose charges you, it is because you are in its space. Get away as fast as you can, zigzagging and putting obstacles between you and the moose.
- Walking dogs near moose is especially dangerous as moose may react dramatically. Use extra caution and keep your pets away.

All Wildlife:

- Keep Wildlife Wild—Do not feed wildlife, including small animals like squirrels and birds.
- Stay Away—Do not approach or follow wildlife. Stay at least 300 yards (275 m) away from bears and maintain a minimum 25 yards (23 m) distance from all other animals, dens, and nests. If your presence alters an animal’s behavior you are too close.

Other Safety Tips

- Medicine—If you take prescribed medication, remember to bring it with you into the park. Always bring extra doses in case of delays.
- Warm Clothing—Even in summer, Denali can be chilly. Bring layers so you can bundle up if weather cools.

Park Regulations

- In an emergency, call 911. There is no cell phone service past Mile 3 on the park road. Flag down a bus driver or park ranger if cell service is unavailable.
- Leave No Trace—Do not collect items including natural specimens (rocks, plants) or artifacts. Leave items where you find them. If you are hiking on a trail, do not stray off the established path.
- Pets—Pets may be walked on roadways, parking areas, campground loops, the Roadside Hiking Trail, or the Roadside Bike Trail. Make sure to use a leash 6 feet (2 m) or shorter, and dispose of pet waste.
- Cycling—Cyclists may ride on roadways, parking areas, campground loops, and the designated Roadside Bike Trail. Do not ride bikes on other trails in the park. Learn more about cycling at go.nps.gov/BikeDenali.
- Drones—Unmanned aerial systems are prohibited.
- Firearms—Firearms are not permitted in federal buildings; elsewhere, Alaska state laws apply.
