A black and white photograph of an archaeological site. In the foreground, a dark, rectangular stone block lies horizontally. To its right is a white identification tag with the text 'OLD BEDLAM' in bold, black, sans-serif capital letters. Below this text, the tag is divided into two sections, each containing a black number: '2' on the left and '1' on the right. Behind the stone block, a vertical black and white checkered scale marker is visible. A long, thin, cylindrical object, possibly a metal rod or pipe, extends horizontally across the upper portion of the image, passing behind the scale marker. The background consists of a light-colored, textured wall with visible cracks and some dark, irregular patches. The entire scene is framed by a thick black border.
