

PRIVATE WILLIAM T. JOBE

Was a 19-year-old blacksmith when he joined the company. Minnigh called him "a true soldier". He wrote that "many of Company K... were fighting on ground over which they had hunted rabbits and quail but two or three short years before and with which locality they were entirely familiar, literally fighting for their homes and firesides."