Be a Park Hero

You can make a difference.

You can learn new skills, teach others and stay active and involved.

Volunteers at Golden Gate National Recreation Area help present the diverse resources of one of America's most popular National Parks to today's visitors, and help preserve these precious resources for future generations.

Volunteers at Golden Gate play a vital role in almost all aspects of park operations:

- Collecting data on birds of prey at the premier hawk watching site on the west coast.

Greet park visitors at a visitor center

- Designing and conducting information programs for the general public and school children.

- Removing non-native plants, growing native plants, and working in one of the park's nurseries.

- Restoring historic structures such as a World War II barracks or a mess hall.

- Assisting people with disabilities to fully enjoy Alcatraz Island through an interactive computer program.

- Working with park scientists to protect endangered species like the mission blue butterfly and peregrine falcon.

Volunteer opportunities at Golden Gate NRA are as diverse as the natural and cultural resources of the park. History buffs, amateur naturalists, artists, students, gardeners and many more people have found a place to share their skills at Golden Gate.

Each volunteer's contribution makes a big difference!

A Great Place to Volunteer

There are many dream jobs for volunteers at GGNRA...

Golden Gate National Recreation Area is a gem of the Bay Area. The park includes an array of resources unparalleled in the National Park System. Stunning forests, creeks, ridges and beaches. Hundreds of miles of trails. Rare plant and animal species.

One of the most important collections of historic buildings in the country. And world renowned destinations like Alcatraz and Muir Woods, as well as lesser known but equally remarkable places. It is a park like no other.
