DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Preservation recommended (needs repair and repainting)

With but a few minor changes, this structure on the exterior resembles its original appearance. It was constructed of large stones laid in cement. It has wood gable ends and a wood shingle roof with wood log rafters. It has an off-center main door at the front, and entrance here is at ground level. The east end also has a door, but the ground slopes to the back of the building, requiring steps at the east door. Today, these steps are of concrete which apparently was laid some years after the construction of the building. A small cement block addition, roughly 8' x 10', was put on the rear of the building in recent years to hold the heating plant for the structure.

The overall exterior dimensions of the building are approximately 55' x 25'.

The interior of the structure has an entrance hall and a large room at the west end and a center hall that extends from it to the east exit. Rooms are off both sides of the center hall.

The structure has a stone fireplace and chimney on the west end.

Boundary: The historic land embraced in this site is bound by the road on the north, the road on the West, an asphalt pathway to the south, and an asphalt pathway to the east.

Class VI lands: 1 acre

Cost: current maintainance adequate

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

3rd Order

Apparently built in 1921, as a dormitory for workers at Grand Canyon National Park, and sometime prior to 1927, it became a Ranger's Dormitory. Later, it was used as nurse's quarters and for a short period in recent years, it was a clinic. It has been returned to a Ranger's Dormitory and is used today to house unmarried seasonal rangers.

Little else is known about the history of this structure.

This structure, one of the earliest built in Grand Canyon by the National Park Service, typifies a type of housing the Service has supplied to its unmarried employees, and as such, it is a significant representative of a phase of the administrative history of Grand Canyon National Park.
