

Manzanar

ID Card

WESTERN DEFENSE COMMAND AND FOURTH ARMY
WARTIME CIVIL CONTROL ADMINISTRATION
Presidio of San Francisco, California
May 3, 1942

INSTRUCTIONS TO ALL PERSONS OF JAPANESE ANCESTRY

Living Area:

A person that becomes temporary at a camp of the War Relocation Authority must be located at that First Point of Entry. Those who are not in that camp must be located in that camp. Those who are not in that camp must be located in that camp.

If a family, or in case of grave emergency, is affected by this restriction in the following manner:

except for other disposition of new kinds of household goods, books, automobiles and other property.

On, or the person in whose name must of that family must be located further on. War Relocation Authority, War Relocation Authority, War Relocation Authority.

In 1942 the United States Government ordered over 110,000 men, women, and children to leave their homes and detained them in remote, military-style camps. Two-thirds of them were born in America. Not one was convicted of espionage or sabotage.

In this booklet, you will read the story of a person who lived this history, in his or her own words.

sure jewed that Jap!” Ralph was stunned. He had grown up in a multi-ethnic neighborhood and had often shared meals in the homes of Japanese American friends.

“It was immoral. It was wrong and I couldn’t accept it. These people hadn’t done anything that I hadn’t done, except to go to Japanese language school. They were Americans, just like I am.”

“It was immoral. It was wrong and I couldn’t accept it. These people hadn’t done anything that I hadn’t done, except to go to Japanese language school. They were Americans, just like I am.” At school one day, before their departure, a Japanese American friend said to him, “Ralph, what are you going to do without us? Why don’t you come along?” He told his father he had decided to go to camp with his Japanese American friends, but he made it sound a little vague and his father thought it was a weekend camp. Later he learned where his son had gone.

“My Dad was a very wise man. He knew I was safe and with friends. You couldn’t ask for more protection—barbed wire, searchlights.

“My Dad was a very wise man. He knew I was safe and with friends. You couldn’t ask for more protection—barbed wire, searchlights.”

He probably was very happy I was there....I let him know that I was going to school, being well fed."

Bound for Manzanar at the Old Santa Fe Station, March 1942

Ralph was 16. "I went down to the old Santa Fe Station and signed on" (to go to camp). He didn't have to lie about being of Japanese ancestry because "they didn't ask. Being brown has its advantages."

Most of Ralph's friends went to Heart Mountain but he made new friends at Manzanar. "I was very happy being with people I admired and respected. At first a lot of people thought I was Eurasian. They eventually found out but they accepted me."

Initially he lived in a block with the older bachelors. "I spoke no Japanese, they spoke no English. They were my Issei (first generation) parents."

Initially he lived in a block with the older bachelors. "I spoke no Japanese, they spoke no English. They were my Issei (first generation) parents. They took care of me." Later he moved in with a friend whose mother wanted to take care of him. "Ralph Merritt, the camp director, said it was all right with him if I wanted to stay. There were 10,000 of us in one square mile. One was no more or less...."

Barracks Life at Manzanar, 1942

Ralph had a camp job delivering mail for $12 a month. Later he made $16 a month as a recreation director. He was class president, a so-so student and full of fun.

"One Christmas he announced, 'We are going Christmas caroling'. He gathered us all into the laundry room and tuned us up. There we were in the rain. But everybody just laughed, nobody ever had so much fun in their lives."—Rosie Kakuuchi

Ralph (center, in the dark shirt) dances with his friend Tama after the war

“Most of the Japanese Americans never participated in extracurricular activities at school. He got people motivated for activities.”—Bruce Kaji

Ralph played football and helped organize Friday night dances. He only left camp twice. One time he represented Manzanar at a YMCA conference in Colorado. The second time was when he was drafted into the Army in August, 1944.

Ralph was sent to the South Pacific in the Army and was awarded a Bronze star for heroism in combat.

Ralph graduated from college and received a Masters degree. He was one of the first people to donate $1000 to the fund for the preparation of a class lawsuit against the United States Government for redress for those who were interned in the war relocation camps. He was called “a Jap, just like his Jap friends” because of his actions. He remarked, “I knew right from wrong. I’m one-eighth Irish. Sometimes it shows.”

He was one of the first people to donate $1000 to the fund for the preparation of a class lawsuit...

Ralph became a counselor at Los Angeles Valley College. He died in 1992.

At a memorial service for Ralph, one of his friends from camp days, William Hohri, said of him:

"When 140 million Americans turned their backs on us and excluded us into remote, desolate prison camps, the separation was absolute—almost. Ralph Lazo's presence among us said,

'No, not everyone.' As a nation, as Japanese Americans, and as his classmates, we need to remember

Ralph (front center) with friends at Manzanar

"When 140 million Americans turned their backs on us and excluded us into remote, desolate prison camps, the separation was absolute—almost. Ralph Lazo's presence among us said, 'No, not everyone.'"

Ralph for his gift of courage and human kindness and embrace him in our hearts with love and gratitude."

In 2004, a movie called "Stand Up For Justice" was made to tell the story of Ralph's courageous decision to join his friends at Manzanar.

STAND UP FOR JUSTICE
The Ralph Lazo Story

MANZANAR Free Press

MANZANAR

Location: Inyo County, California, at the eastern base of the Sierra Nevada.

Environmental

Conditions: Temperatures can be over 100 degrees in summer and below freezing in winter. Strong winds & dust storms are frequent.

Acreage: 6,000

Opened: March 21, 1942 as a Reception Center and June 1, 1942 as a War Relocation Center.

Closed: November 21, 1945

Max. Population: 10,046 (September 1942)

Demographics: Most internees were from the Los Angeles area, Terminal Island, and the San Fernando Valley. Others came from the San Joaquin Valley and Bainbridge Island.

LIFE IN A MANZANAR BLOCK

Wind and Dust

This wind and dust I have to bear
 How hard it blows I do not care.
 But when the wind begins to blow --
 My morale is pretty low.

I know that I can see it through
 Because others have to bear it too.

So I will bear it with the rest
 And hope the outcome is the best.

-- George Nishimura, age 16 (1943)

Manzanar Cemetery, Winter 2002.

This booklet was developed by the park rangers at Manzanar National Historic Site in partnership with the individuals profiled and their families.

The National Park Service cares for special places saved by the American people so that all may experience our heritage. To learn more about your national parks, visit the National Park Service website at www.nps.gov. To learn more about Manzanar National Historic Site, please visit our website at www.nps.gov/manz.

Manzanar National Historic Site
P.O. Box 426, Independence, CA 93526
Tel. 760-878-2194
E-mail: manz_superintendent@nps.gov

Printing was made possible by a grant from the California Civil Liberties Public Education Program.