

National Park Service, Scranton, Pennsylvania

Steamtown National Historic Site

The 1991 visitor season will run from May 25, 1991, through October 27, 1991, and will operate from the historic Delaware, Lackawanna, and Western yards at 150 South Washington Avenue in downtown Scranton. Visit the temporary visitor center climb into the cab of a steam locomotive, ring the bell, look out the cupola of a caboose, and join a park ranger on a tour into the developing roundhouse area. Take a short ride in the yards, as you watch a new park begin to take shape. All of those activities are free. Should you wish to take an excursion, there is one offered three days a week - 58 mile round trip - that leaves from near the park area. A small program fee covers the cost of that part of your Steamtown visit. Reservations will be necessary during the popular times of the season.
