

Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts

Vienna, Virginia

1992 Summer Interpretive Program

Free to All

Wolf Trap Farm Park is the first national park dedicated to the performing arts. Donated in 1966, more than 100 acres of rolling Virginia farmland make the setting for the lively venture. To introduce youngsters to the theatre, the National Park Service presents summer morning programs for children, delighting them with storytelling, music, puppets, nature walks, and opera. The performers who bring their talents to the park's Theatre-in-the-Woods draw in young people informally to share the excitement of the stage. The diverse and energetic productions will delight audiences throughout the season.

On stage, front and center, for Wolf Trap's 1992 children's theatre season:

ANA MARTINEZ FLAMENCO DANCE TROUPE—presents classical Spanish dance to music performed by Paco de Malaga

BILLY B—sings his own compositions blending loony humor and solid science as he explores the world around us

BLUE SKY PUPPET THEATRE—offers the engaging and imaginative Tree House

BOB BROWN PUPPETS—ever popular with Wolf Trap's children, perform two musicals: Clowning Around and King of the Golden River

CAROL GRAHAM-LEHAN DANCE COMPANY—a fantasy of dance: tap, modern, and interpretive

CREATIVE OPERA THEATRE—introduces opera to young people with Opera to Go

DANZA DEL RIO—present the fascinating color, energy, and music of Hispanic dance

KETER BETTS TRIO—perform a lively program of American jazz

LIBRARY THEATRE—offer two perennial favorites: Stone Stew and The Boy Who Cried Wolf

LINDA FONG—weaves spellbinding tales in the Chinese tradition

MARC SPIEGEL—a master storyteller, creates his special magic

MARK JASTER—a mime, engages his audience with skillful movements, music, and humor

THEATRE FOUR—presents the heartwarming tale of the Brave Little Tailors

TOM DAUGHERTY—a clown for all ages

THE VIRGINIA COMPANY—provide a potpourri of American music

New this season, the Saturday Opera Series opens the dramatic world of opera to children with one-hour performances of familiar stories.

On some evenings before performances in the Filene Center, members of the audience may meet at Wolf Trap's Log Shelter for half-hour discussions designed to enhance the pleasure and understanding of the evening's offering, whether it be symphony, dance, opera, or a musical.

The calendar on the reverse side lists dates and times for children's programs and Pre-Performance Previews.
